What effect Mr. GROSVENOR'S Yunnan report will have on the policy of the Government it is hard to say, but if it be, as stated, unfavourable, it will assuredly tend to render it more dolermined. Whether peace or war be the issue of the present difficulty, there can be little doubt that there will be a revision the treaties and that the relations between China and Great Britain will be laid on new and more satisfactory basis. It is to b hoped, however, that Her Majesty's Go. vernment will not forget, when consulting with other Powers, that British interests in China considerably exceed those of all other Western nations put together, and that consequently it is in no wise called upon to follow mny lead. UNDER the heading, "The Union of Islam, will be found in another column an article translated from the Constantinople al-Jawaib which throws some fresh light upon the recent alliance formed between Turkey and Kashgar. It will be remembered that the AMEER some time since, somewhat to the surprise of most people, entered into a treaty with Turkey and publicly acknowledged the was at the same time reported to be sending mainly, perhaps in the interests of YACOOR BEG. The policy of this movement on the part of the AMEER we questioned at the time, as it appeared to be most improbable that Turkey could afford him the smallest material assistance in his struggle with China, while it was almost certain to rouse the resentment of his powerful, ambitious, and scheming neighbour, Russin, The distance between Turkey and Kashgar, the want of communication, and the poverty of the Sultan, were all insuperable obstacles to the former rendering the AMEER any help in men or arms. YACOOR BEG must have been lamentably ignorant of the condition of the Sick Man, or he would surely never have hoped for assistance from such a quarter. That he did hope for it there seems no Directors for re-election. reason to doubt. Unity of faith, he thought perhaps, should produce unity of interest. He was destined to be speedily undeceived. His Envoy, who craved a loau of five millions sterling and the services of ten thousand soldiers, was soon told that the SULTAN had neither the money nor the men to spare. His Sublime Majesty had no objection to receive the Ameer's submission as his tributary, and would be perfectly willing to afford | year ending on the 30th Jone last. him what moral support it was in his power ii. to give. This would, if it had ever been given, however, have proved a very frail reed ly indeed to lean upon, but, strange to say, nothing further has been heard of the Embassy to Poking, and it appears doubtful now whether it ever left Constantinople. Clearly enough Kashgar never had anything enabled, after paying for extensive repairs, to The only thing the jungistrate could do in that to hope from Turkey. That Power, even if free from the embarrassments and internecine struggles which at present threaten it with destruction, is too remote from Kashgar to be able to render it much nid of any kind. Turkey is, to all appearance, in the threes of dissolution Egypt is in a state of financial embarrassment almost unprocedented; nearly all the Maho medan States in Central Asia have been subjugated and annexed by Russia: Morocco and other African Mahomedan countries are comparatively powerless; and Kashgar alone shows any real vigour. The AMEER is, however, in a rather critical position, for he i placed, so to speak, between two fires. With WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DRUGGISTS. China he is engaged in a war that may be prosecuted to the bitter end; with Russia he is on rather doubtful terms, and the CZAR may, at any moment, if it suits his purnose enter into an alliance with China against him. The Government of St. Petersburg is now calmly looking on at the struggle between China and Kashgar, and will no doubt be ready with its proposals when the proper moment arrives. It does not suit its purpose yet to intervene. If the Chinese are business communications be addressed to the hard driven and become anxious for assistance, then it would probably be forthcoming from Russia at a price.
